WAR IN THE EAST.

The Harbin correspondent of the Paris Matin says that a detachment of Japanese cavalry, commanded by Uitenko, has entered Moah-fur-kan, South Manchuria, close to the Korean border. It is alleged that 60,000 Japanese have now been landed at Wonsan, their objective being Manchuria.

In Korea the weather is cold, and there is snow. The sea is still rough at Port Arthur.

The detachment of 2,500 Japanese troops, without artillery, which arrived at Song-chin, Plaksin bay, on the north-west coast of Korea, February 19, landed from three steamers, escorted by three warships, at night, and started immediately on a march to Moah-fur-kan, South Manchuria, close to the Korean border.

The landing is believed at St. Petersburg to be the origin of the recent reports of a Japanese landing at Possiet bay, and is considered to be an attempt to outflank the Russian advance from the Yala river.

The Japanese, according to Gen. Pflug, have gone to a point whence a mountain pass leads to the headwaters of the Yalu, eighty miles distant. Marching in that mountainous region is declared by experts to be almost impossible. The absence of roads, it is added, will completely upset the Japanese plans, the only good road in Korea, leading through Ping-yang, being already in possession of the Russians.

Since the disappearance of the Japanese fleet from before Port Arthur the Russian authorities have been awaiting anxiously for the next move of the Japanese on sea. There is an inclination to believe that the Japanese have been discouraged by the failure of their attacks, and perhaps by losses they have not announced.

The Russians are preparing to leave Mukden.

The Japanese consul at Seoul reports a scarcity of foodstuffs, and recommends the reopening of the regular steamship lines. Cossacks have seized the telegraph offices at Ningpyong and An-ju, and have imprisoned the head man at An-ju and carried off the local archives.

The railway has been torn up for a distance of two kilometers between Kharbin and Nikolsk. A document was officially issued February 5 by the governor of the Amur territory ridiculing Japan as a paltry nation and declaring that it was Russia's heaven-sent duty to crush her as representing the yellow peril and thus to render a service to humanity.

A St. Petersburg dispatch quotes a Russian staff officer in reference to the possible evacuation of Port Arthur: "What!" exclaimed the officer, "evacuate Port Arthur? What worse disaster could befall the Russian army? Such an act would imply the capture or destruction of our squadron. It would mean the loss of one end of our railway, dans la gueule du Japonais, with the prospect of his swallowing the larger piece. The loss of Port Arthur would be a terrible blow to Russia, from which it would recover with great difficulty. Our army might continue to fight while receding in Manchuria and might conquer in the end, but to evacuate would be retreating, and no advance would be possible before Port Arthur was recaptured. Therefore it should not be evacuated. That is an operation never foreseen nor studied by the Russian staff and we don't believe the Japanese can take the place by main force."

The feeling at St. Petersburg is growing more tense. The rapidity of the Japanese military movements and the comprehensiveness of their plans have made no less a sensation than the naval vigor and the initiative steps taken by them.

An intrigue on the part of the opposition at Seoul against the conclusion of the Japanese-Korean protocol culminated in the throwing of bombs at the residences of the foreign minister and his secretary early Thursday morning. They escaped uninjured.

Planned a Terrible Crime.

It has developed that Scott Neal, the man who shot and killed James Sutton and was himself killed by Jailer Bulger in the jail at St. Clairsville, W. Va., Tuesday evening, contemplated what would have been the most terrible crime in criminal jurisprudence. It was nothing less than the shooting of his wife, Mrs. Neal; Sheriff Majors and Chief of Police Terrill as they sat in the courtroom waiting to testify against him in an assault case. Now that the details of the plan are known, the authorities are horror-stricken. Neal was once a policeman on the Martins Ferry force. He shot a man and got into so much trouble that he wound up in the Ohio penitentiary at Columbus. He was recently released and went back to Martins Ferry. Going to the home of his wife, he drove out her mother and his two children and assaulted his wife brutally. It was for the last named offense that he was to have been tried on Thursday. On Tuesday he secured, through outside aid, a revolver, and confided to his fellow-prisoner, Jas. Sutton, his intention of slaying his wife, Chief Terrill and the sheriff. At the last moment, when all the officers of the jail approached to lock the prisoners in their cells, he ascertained that Sutton had betrayed him. With an oath he drew his weapon and shot Sutton; then turned the revolver on the sheriff, but the weapon was not responsive, and before he could fire another shot Jailer Bulger killed him. His wife, when informed of her husband's death, cried: "Oh, it is too good to be true!"

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy
